ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I take this opportunity to express my indebtedness to my esteemed teacher and supervisor - DR. HARNEK S. KAILE, Principal, G.H.G. Khalsa College of Education, Gurusar Sudhar (Ludhiana) - for his invaluable guidance, constructive criticism and inspiration for the present study. But for his vast knowledge and painstaking efforts for the present study, the thesis would not have taken the present shape.

I wish to express my heartiest thanks to all the worthy members of the faculty of Education, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for extending all possible co-operation.

I am grateful to my parents, wife and friends specially Dr Sangha, Dr Sidhu and Prof. Tarlok Bandhu for their co-operation in the accomplishment of the present study.

I am equally grateful to the Director SCERT Punjab, Principals' Inservice Teacher Training Centres, District Education Officers, Heads and subjects, without whose co-operation, the data collection would not have been possible.

Thanks are also due to S. Dildar Singh, Senior Stenographer, Department of Horticulture, PAU, Ludhiana, for typing this thesis with great care and personal interest.

March, 1999.
