ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is often difficult to put one's feelings into words. Although it is customary, in the interest of brevity to minimize the thanks to all those who have made the attainment of such a goal possible, this perhaps, might deny the fullest gratitude and credit that is rightly owed to my advisor, colleagues and friends, all of whom together have contributed to the completion of this work.

I am extremely indebted to Dr. H.G. Hanumappa, Professor and Head, Department of Agricultural Development and Rural Transformation Unit, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore and my research guide who has not only provided an erudite guidance, valuable suggestions and constructive criticism throughout the period of this study, but also has been a source of inspiration and encouragement. I have been immensely benefited by his wise counselling and helpful guidance for which I shall remain ever grateful to him.

My sincere gratitude is due to Prof. S.N. Nanje Gowda, Department of Economics, Bangalore University who was instrumental in formulating this project and provided encouragement and support to complete the same.

I am highly grateful to Dr. Lalith Acoth of University of Agricultural Sciences, Bangalore who encouraged me at all stages of the project and made many helpful suggestions.

I owe a deep sense of gratitude to Dr. R. G. Desai, Chairman, Department of Economics, Bangalore University and the Faculty members, Department of Economics, especially to Professors R. Veerachamy, Dr. D. T. Nanje Gowda, Krishnaswamy, K. K. Seethamma and Anjaneyaswamy for their help and encouragement.

The author is heavily indebted to Prof. K. Venkatagiri Gowda, Member of Parliament, Dr. Selvi Das, former Vice-Chancellor, Mysore University, presently member, Union Public Service Commission, New Delhi, Prof. Abdul Khyum, Director of Collegiate Education in Karnataka, Bangalore, Prof. Abdul Aziz, ISEC, Prof. M. C. Ratna and Prof. T. Shivanna for their guidance and encouragement.

I express my gratitude to Dr. B. R. Atteri, Economist, IARI, New Delhi, Dr. Vishwa Ballabh, IRMA, Anand, Dr. P. G. Chengappa, Professor and Head, Department of Marketing and Co-operation and Sri. B. M. Ramachandra Reddy, UAS, Bangalore for their manifold help and encouragement.

I am highly benefited by the discussions with the various scientists and economists of the Rubber Board, especially, Dr. Haridasan, Dr. Therian George, Mr. George Jacob, Mr. Unni, Dr. Jayarathnam and Smt. Lalitha Kumari. The help received from the officers and staff of the Rubber
Board and Rubber Research Institute, Kottayam during the data collection is gratefully acknowledged.

My grateful acknowledgement goes to University Grants Commission, New Delhi for providing me the Teacher Fellowship to accomplish this work.

I also express my sincere thanks to the Library and Administrative staff, Bangalore University who have extended all help and co-operation during the period of my research work.

I take this opportunity to extend my profoundest thanks to my friends, Dr. (Mrs.) Madhumitha Neogi, Professors Shantha J. Shetty, D. Krishnamurthy and all my colleagues at Maharani's Arts College at Bangalore and Mysore for their helpful encouragement to complete this thesis.

I wish to record my reverence and devotion to my father Shri. M. N. Devaya and my in-laws Shri and Smt. P. S. Carriappa for their continued encouragement and unfailing help and affection bestowed on me. I am eternally indebted to my beloved mother, late Smt. M. D. Kamini without whose blessings I would not have achieved this success. I am highly indebted to my sisters, brothers and relatives for their help from time to time.

I am aware that this acknowledgement will not be complete unless I thank my husband Dr. P. C. Ravi and beloved sons Prithvi and Varun. They deserve all appreciation for having cheerfully borne my lucubrations as well as admired my success, regretted my failures and loved me all the time.
