Acknowledgement

As I draw the curtains on this intellectual quest, I would like to place on record the services of all those heads, hearts and hands who have been a beacon of light to me in this brief search. It is their scholarly guidance, constant support and timely help that made me reach the destination of this syncretic mystical journey. These scholars and mystics have left their indelible imprints on the sands of time and have always lent me a helping hand to reach the other side of the shore.

I owe my deepest intellectual debt to Dr Rajendra Chenni, Professor, Department of P.G. Studies and Research in English, Kuvempu University, Shimoga, Karnataka, for guiding me in this mystical search and for being the source of inspiration and admiration by providing me with scholarly suggestions and constant guidance throughout my research work. Yes, my heart goes out to thank him for being a strong pillar of support and encouragement all through.

I express my heartfelt thanks to Dr Rachel Bari, Professor, Department of P.G. Studies and Research in English for her words of enthusiasm and encouragement; and to Dr Namratha, Dr Nagya Naik, Dr Ramprasad, Mr Dattatreya and Mr Vinay for helping and bearing me across hills and vales. I am grateful to all the teaching and non-teaching staff of the Department of P.G. Studies and Research in English and the Library staff of Kuvempu University for their help in carrying out this work.

I affectionately remember my beloved parents - Joseph Michael Lobo and Christine Lobo - and my ever loving brothers and sisters, near and dear ones for moulding me in the school of love, and the school of knowledge and wisdom. Yes, it is they who had lit the wick whispering to me, “Be the light of the world.”
With deep sentiments, I remember my beloved Jesuit fraternity. Pope Francis is my source of inspiration and admiration. The Society of Jesus with its former and the present Superiors General - Fr Peter Hans Kolvenbach S.J. and Fr Adolfo Nicolas S.J. - both of whom personally encouraged me in the study and ministry of inter-religious dialogue; The Provincial, Fr Stanislaus Jerome D’ Souza S.J., who encouraged me to aim at higher valuables and reach further heights: “To dream the impossible dream and to reach the unreachable star”; Fr Paul Jackson S.J., a scholar on cum translator of Sharafuddin Maneri’s works from the original Persian who persuaded me to carry on his mystical legacy by undertaking the research on the mystic saint; Fr Thomas Michel S.J., an Islamic scholar and professor at Georgetown University, New York who was the Vatican Secretary for inter-religious dialogue; Fr Christian W. Troll S.J., the Secretary for inter-religious dialogue of the Society of Jesus; Fr Terence Farias S.J., who encouraged me to study Urdu and Islamic studies; Fr Ronnie Prabhu S.J., founder-director of the Ashirvad Harmony Movement; both the Rectors of St Joseph’s College - Fr Anthony Joseph U.G. S.J., and Fr Brian Pereira S.J. - with the entire faculty and the students where I serve; my own Ashirvad Jesuit Community, which for me is a home away from home; each member of the Karnataka Jesuit Province who formed me and moulded me in the school of the heart and carried me on eagle’s wings over mountains and dales, sharing in my portion of both sorrow and joy. I fondly remember the staff and students of St Aloysius College, Mangalore and St Aloysius College, Harihar, wherein I spent the initial years of my Jesuit priestly life in ministerial service. I thank Regy Joseph, my research companion for his constant help and immense support in the completion of this work. Thank you one and all.
