ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of this thesis is the fruit of a long and sedulous research which consumed many restless days and sleepless nights. This study has indeed broadened my knowledge and at the same time involved many challenges.

This study could not have been possible without the support, encouragement, co-operation and assistance of many known and unknown people, who helped me in conducting this research and compiling the research into this thesis. It is my duty to acknowledge their help and contribution and to convey my gratitude to all of them for their co-operation at the different phases of this study.

First of all, I would like to thank almighty God for instilling strength and enthusiasm in me required for conducting this study.

I must convey my gratitude to my supervisor Dr. B. R. Saini, Professor, Department of Law, Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra for his assistance, guidance and professional touch with which he guided me throughout this study. The long discussion with him gave shape to my abstract ideas and his encouragement and constructive suggestions added to the quality of this study.

I convey my special thanks to Dr. V K Razdan, Professor and Chairman, Department of Law, Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra and all teachers of the department whose constant inspiration kept me energized to finish the task in given time.

I am also thankful to all scholars, researchers, authors and writers whose work I have utilized for the completion of this study.
I also convey my thanks to entire non-teaching staff of Department of Law especially Ram Lal Mehra Supdt. and Ram Parsad Astt. Supdt for their continuous support during the course of my research work.

I also extend my thanks to all the people who always remained behind the scenes, but their direct and indirect contribution to this study cannot be forgotten. These people include employees and customers of various organisations who willingly agreed to participate in the surveys and shared their views, which has been used by me in this study.

I extend my deepest gratitude to my family-my son Shubh because the time I utilized for this research was legally his, my husband Mr Shispal Sinhmar, Assistant Professor, Dyal Singh College, University of Delhi who happens to be my inspirer-in-chief and my pillar of strength, I convey my special thanks to my parents Mrs Santosh Devi and Mr J S Solkhe who supported me emotionally throughout this study. I am also thankful to my In-laws and my Brother (Ajay Solkhe) & his wife (Monika) for instilling the confidence in me to complete my research,

My special thanks to Prof. Preet Singh, Director,UILMS, Gurgaon for cooperation and Dr. Anupam Kurlwal, Assistant Professor, UILMS Gurgaon for the constant guidance provided irrespective of the busy time schedules throughout this research endeavour.

I want to acknowledge every single person who contributed to this research in any way, but it is an impossible task. However their contributions are no less important than those mentioned above and so is my gratitude for them.
