CONTENTS

LIST OF TABLES

LIST OF FIGURES

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I  INTRODUCTION

1.1 The Structural Nature of Employment
1.2 Quality of Employment
1.2.1 Mode of Recruitment
1.2.2 Conditions of Work
1.2.3 Health and Safety Aspects of Work
1.3 Scope and Objectives of the Thesis
1.3.1 Statement of the Problem
1.3.2 Area of Study
1.3.3 Methodology and Scope
1.3.4 Scheme of Chapters
1.3.5 Limitations of the Study

II  GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT OF LEATHER INDUSTRY: AN OVERVIEW

2.1 The Leather Tanning Industry During the Colonial Period
2.1.1 Beginnings of the Industry
2.1.2 Development of Leather Industry: Late Nineteenth Century till Independence
2.1.3 Impetus Through Export Promotion
2.2 Development of Leather Industry: Post Colonial Phase
2.2.1 Development During 1950-1972
2.2.2 Changes Since 1973
2.3 Distribution of the Leather Tanning Industry Across the Madras Presidency

2.3.1 Size and Geographical Spread of the Industry
2.3.2 Caste and Community of Leather Workers and Traders

2.4 The Indian Factories Act and the Leather Industry

2.4.1 Legislative Intervention
2.4.2 Inadequacies and Loopholes

2.5 Committees and Working Conditions

2.5.1 Tanneries: Working Conditions and General Environment
2.5.2 Women and Children in Tanneries
2.5.3 Provision of Water and Other Facilities

2.6 Summary

III ASPECTS OF PRODUCTION AND EMPLOYMENT IN LEATHER TANNING INDUSTRY: IMPLICATIONS FOR GENDER AND HEALTH

3.1 Technical Organisation of Production in the Leather Tanning Industry

3.1.1 Processes
3.1.2 Physical Layout of Tanneries

3.2 Establishing Tanning Units: Legal Aspects

3.2.1 Procedure for Starting a Tanning Unit
3.2.2 Leather Industry in Dindigul
3.2.3 Estimation of Total Workers in Dindigul

3.3 The Phenomenon of Job Working in the Dindigul Tanning Industry

3.3.1 Job Working in Tamil Nadu vis-à-vis India
3.3.2 Job Work in Dindigul and Its Composition
3.3.3 Significance and Implications of Job Work
3.4 Conditions of Labour in Leather Tanneries

3.4.1 Employment Status in Leather Tanneries
3.4.2 Gender Discrimination and Subordination in Leather Tanning Units

3.5 Summary

IV OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH ISSUES IN LEATHER TANNING INDUSTRY

4.1 Issues of Occupational Health in Developing Countries

4.2 Some Approaches to Occupational Health Studies

4.3 Review of OH Studies with Specific Reference to the Leather Industry

4.3.1 Epidemiological Studies
4.3.2 Other (Non-Medical) Studies

4.4 Nature of Hazards in the Tanning Industry: General

4.4.1 Hazards Due to Improperly Guarded Machines
4.4.2 Hazards Due to Improper Handling of Handtools
4.4.3 Hazards Due to Noise
4.4.4 Hazards Due to Raw Materials
4.4.5 Chemical Hazards
4.4.6 Other Hazards

4.5 Observations from the Field

4.5.1 Sources of Information
4.5.2 Findings

4.6 Summary

V CONCLUSION

REFERENCES