ACKNOWLEDGMENT

My deep sense of gratitude is due to Dr. G. Srinivasan, Research Supervisor, Reader, School of Management, Pondicherry University, Pondicherry, who has been helping me throughout the period of my research by his able guidance, invaluable suggestions, timely advice and constructive comments.

I am grateful to Thiru. J.K.K. Angappa Chettiar, Correspondent, Secretary and Managing Trustee and the members of the managing committee, Salem Sowdeswari College and my colleagues who have always been encouraging me to carry-out this research programme.

I have pleasure to acknowledge my great obligation to Dr. M.T. Thiagarajan, Dean and other professors of the School of Management, Pondicherry University for helping me from those to time for the successful completion of the research programme.

I am immensely grateful to the managements of the sample units for reading granting me permission to carry-out the research in their organisations. I owe my gratitude to the officers and staff of these units who spared their valuable time for discussing certain aspects relating to their functions which form part of the research and for their forthright commends and criticisms.

This acknowledgment will be incomplete if I fail to place on record my debt to gratitude to the officers of Indian Bureau of Mines, Nagpur, Staff of the Department of Mining and Geology, refractory experts, geologists, mining engineers, professors of other institutions and Universities and other respondents who helped me a lot by providing various information and data to make the study a complete one.

Help has been received from so many individuals and organisations at such diverse times that it would be impossible to name them all, but it does not mean that I have failed to appreciate the value of such help and to be grateful for it.

A word of thanks for the Excellent Computer Centre will also be not out of place. They have done a neat and swift job.
