ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to record my debts to several persons and friends who provided much needed support in completing this thesis.

I am indeed deeply indebted and grateful to my supervisors Dr M Thomas Paul, Professor, National Institute of Bank Management, Pune and Dr M Nageshwar Rao, Professor, STEM, Bangalore, without whose guidance and co-operation, my thesis would not have been possible. Their encouragement and the reception to my views on the subject made this work more valuable.

I am grateful to Dr M Govinda Rao, Director of the Institute, for his encouragement to me and to the student community as a whole, and other faculty members and staff for their timely help at every stage of my work. I must thank the institute authorities and the RBI for providing me with a fellowship.

Since the days of my Post Graduation, one person who influenced me a lot to do research is Dr B Kamaiah. His encouraging words and academic works made me to stay in research field. I am grateful to him.

It is my privilege to express my deep sense of gratitude to Prof P R Brahmananda, National Professor, who is a great source of inspiration to me, for giving his valuable time in discussing various research themes of mutual interest.

I thank Prof Richard K. Lyons, University of California, Berkeley, and Dr Rakhal Dave, Olsen & Associates, Switzerland for their generosity in sending me some research materials and clearing some of my doubts in the study.

For this kind of study, researcher needs a practical knowledge about the working of the foreign exchange markets. In this regard I must thank the foreign exchange dealers of the Vysya Bank and the participants of the workshop in NIBM, Pune, for providing their valuable time in discussing various practical issues of the market dealing.

My stay at University of Mumbai as a UGC Visiting Fellow for one month has helped me a lot. I had discussions with the leading academicians and the Bankers and also visited libraries of RBI, UTI Institute of Capital Markets and IIT. In this regard I must thank the Department of Economics, University of Mumbai and Dr M Ramchandran for making my stay fruitful.
I must express my gratitude to Dr Subba Reddy, IFMR; Dr Nityananda Sarkar, ISI Calcutta and Sri Arun Kumar Trivedi, Indus Ind Bank for their timely help in sending some research materials and data. I also express my gratitude the library staffs of ISEC, IIM Bangalore, IFMR Chennai, University of Mumbai, ISI Calcutta and Bangalore, NIBM Pune, and Federal Reserve Banks for their help in collecting research materials.

I must thank the kindly help of Dr Hemalatha Rao, Dr M Mahadeva, Dr Vani, Dr Veerashekarappa, Dr Mathyazagan, Mr K S Narayana, Mr Anil, Mr Itagi and Mr Vekatesh.

My stay at ISEC hostel for about four years is an interesting part. I cannot forget the love, affection and hatred showed by the fellow hostlers. I must express that I did not feel the pain of leg fracture with the presence of friends like Sitakant, Kannan, Gagan, Radha, Deepthi, Amal, Vishnu, Putta and Rangasamy. I am happy that they are my good friends.

I thank my parents, Smt Saraswathi and Sri Ranga Reddy, and other family members for stimulating my inclination to study. Last and foremost I acknowledge the invaluable support of Mini, my partner in many endeavors. Without our companionship, this research would probably never have taken place.

Bangalore, 14th June 2000.