ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Foremost, I owe my deepest gratitude to my supervisor and guide, Dr. A.S. Dasan, Professor of English, for what he has been to me vis-à-vis this research-endeavour. He taught me how to pursue research with a mind of critical inquiry and scholarly integrity. Emphasizing the ideal that that a good research is a collective pursuit, he made me realize that thesis-writing is an arduous task. Every interaction I had with him ushered me into a new perspective propelling me to be familiar with the art of complex seeing vis-à-vis the present study. The journey vis-à-vis the research work, I had to make a long journey spanning more than six years, interrupted in-between due to unavoidable health reasons and exigencies at the home front, causing, at times, a bit of uneasiness to my guide because of delays in drafting. I cannot forget Mrs. Dasan for her goodness, magnanimity, and patience manifested during this long journey.

It is my duty to acknowledge the services rendered by the respective Chairpersons and the members of the Doctoral Committee and the Department of English, then and now, for their timely interventions in routing the research in the right direction by their useful comments and suggestions. The staff at the Office of the Department of English, PhD Section, and the Librarian and the Assistant Librarian, UoM, were very helpful.

Some of my esteemed teachers, and peer-group friends from my student days, of varied dispositions, aesthetics and sensibilities, who could appreciate my interest in drama since my student days at Mangalore University and my association with the Management and the staff of Carmel College, Bangalore, were quite supportive in this endeavour. The Principal, the Vice-Principal, the Dean, the HOD of Humanities, the Management and colleagues of B.M.S. College of Engineering, Bangalore, the institution where I work at present, supported me with all goodwill to ensure that I completed the task on time.

My heartfelt gratitude goes to my husband, C.S. Srinath Somayaji, who stood with me like a rock, my son, Arjuna Somayaji, who had to miss me on quite a few occasions, and my close relatives in Bangalore and Mysore who extended their affection and support. I thank them all for their unstinted love and concern for me during this pursuit. I also remember my late parents for having instilled in me the passion for life and interest in drama, and my parents-in-law, for their emotional support.

Finally, I thank the Almighty for the blessings he has showered upon me through all these persons named above.
