ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

As a student of media and journalism, I got introduced to media literacy as an area of study during my postgraduate course in the Department of Mass Communication and Journalism, Tezpur University, in the year- 2007-09. As part of our course curriculum, we had to write a term paper in each semester. In the first semester itself, Dr. K. S Arul Selvan handed over to us a list of near about twenty themes relating to media and communication for writing our respective term papers. After a brief glance through the list, I decided to write on media literacy, which in the initial stage was a very simple idea to me but, it is only at the later stages during my Ph.D, that I realised its complexity. So, I thank Dr. Arul Selvan for introducing ML to me as a student of Mass Communication and Journalism. I also owe a great deal of gratitude to Dr. P. Anbarsan, for his guidance and meaningful advice both during and after my M.A course.

Though, joining for Ph.D was not in my mind initially, just after I passed out from Tezpur University, but it was my brother who always keeps on insisting me to enrol myself in Ph.D. So I thank my brother Amar for his guidance at various levels. I also thank my sister Rachita and brother-in-law Sailen for their perennial love, affection and moral support throughout.

Though initially I had a plan to do my Ph.D from Tezpur University, later, an opportunity comes from Assam University. I would forever indebted to Assam University and the Department of Mass Communication for showing their trust and belief in me on various grounds. I have got every possible support in the department both from the faculty members who have been a source of inspiration, and the staff who have been always helpful. I thank Prof. G. P. Pandey (HoD), for his support and encouragement from the very beginning. Along with, I offer my deep sense of gratitude to Prof. B. B. Mate, Dean, Abanindranath Tagore School of Creative Arts and Communication Studies, Assam University.

The Rabindra Library of Assam University along with the staff members owe a special applause, where I have spent almost one and a half year of my tenure as a Ph.D Scholar for research work on a regular basis. The Library is rich and resourceful, especially the sections like Language, Literature, Mass Communication and Philosophy. The reference section is good.

I also thank the university and UGC for the grant of monthly financial assistance and other benefits, without which it would have never been possible for me to carry out my research work.
I offer my respect and love to Prof. K.V. Nagaraj, for giving me an opportunity to complete my thesis under his guidance and helping me in every possible way. It is only under his intellectual guidance that I came to know the many possible ways one can think of media literacy. Throughout, he has been my guide, philosopher and friend, all together. I am indebted to Dr. Silajit Guha, as my co-supervisor, for his academic advice and suggestions.

Besides, I thank my fellow Ph.D scholars for being with me, and sharing their thoughts as and when we meet in the university campus. They are Royal, Junali, Kaifia, Rajnesh, Rahul, and Sudipta.

I acknowledge Gandhi Smriti Darshan Samiti (GSDS), New Delhi, Punjab University, IIS University Jaipur, Allahabad University and Forum on Contemporary Theory (FCT) Baroda for giving me opportunities for participating in seminars and conferences. I should mention the name of Prafulla Kar, Nikhil Moro, Jyotirmoy Tripathy and Vedabhyas Kundu.

I accept that each one of us have our own limitations. So I thank all of them whose contribution goes without recorded.
