I ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research has been achieved due to the opportunity given by Professor Dr. Vijay Marulkar and Department of Sociology, S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Mumbai. It was wonderful experience for me to work under the guidance of Prof. Dr. Vijay Marulkar, my Guide. It is difficult to express my heartfelt appreciation for his valuable guidance, comments and suggestions while I was working on my research problem. I have no words to express my deep gratitude towards him.

I also wish to express my deep gratitude to the Prison Department of Maharashtra, who allowed me into the prisons to conduct my research activity. Without their kind co-operation and assistance in the fieldwork, on which this thesis is based would not have come to reality. Special thanks are, of course, due to all the prison officers who took the time to talk to me, put up with me hanging around their workplace for almost two years.

I also greatly indebted to the inmates for their excellent cooperation and patience in responding to my queries without much hesitation. I express my apology for the troubles given to the prisoners for seeking information about their past and gave hope to them for the future.

For getting myself acquainted with the practical side of rehabilitation of prisoners, I visited number of NGOs in Maharashtra. Special thanks to such NGOs like PRAYAS (Mumbai), VARHAD (Amravati), SAATHI (Pune), Mr. Asim Sarode and Mrs. Rama Sarode (Pune). They were kind enough to provide me with all facilities for the purpose of data collection.
I sincerely acknowledge the cooperation given to me by the library staff of S.N.D.T. Women’s University, Mumbai, Tata Institute of Social Sciences and Bombay High Court, Mumbai. Office of Inspector General Of Prison, Pune.

I am most thankful to my colleague researcher and friend Miss Shraddha Srivastava, who offered suggestions and discussed the material related to the thesis. I must acknowledge my other friends and judicial colleagues and my both seniors Late Nayan S. Singh and Adv. Neelima Kanitkar, who supported me in times of difficulties and despair. I really appreciate their support and prefer to remain in their debt.

The statistical analysis used in this study is the result of assistance provided by Prof. Ghatpande, Nashik. I thank him for being so approachable and humble. I thank Mrs. Kakade my colleague researcher for helping me to contact him.

Mrs. Archana Shinde and Mr. Prashant Kadam, who undertook the overall typing work of the thesis as per my requirement.

I must pay special gratitude to my mother and father, whose support has been my greatest strength. It is what made me to complete the research.

A large number of people helped me to produce my Ph. D. Thesis, and there is insufficient space here to name everyone who gave me their support. I hope that the people I do not specifically mention will take it as read that their kind assistance is very gratefully acknowledged.

November, 2011

Swarupa N. Dholam
Researcher